DISCUSSION: The waiver application was denied by the Officer in Charge, Monterrey, Mexico, and a subsequent appeal was dismissed by the Associate Commissioner for Examinations. The matter is now before the Associate Commissioner on a motion to reopen. The motion will be granted and the order dismissing the appeal will be affirmed. The application will be denied.

The applicant is a native and citizen of Jamaica who was found by a consular officer to be inadmissible to the United States under section 212(a)(6)(C)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(6)(C)(i), for having sought to procure admission into the United States by fraud or willful misrepresentation in 1988. In 1996, the applicant married a lawful permanent resident who subsequently naturalized as a citizen of the United States in 1998. The applicant is the beneficiary of an approved petition for alien relative and seeks the above waiver in order to travel to the United States to reside with her spouse.

The officer in charge concluded that the applicant had failed to establish that extreme hardship would be imposed on a qualifying relative and denied the application accordingly. The Associate Commissioner affirmed that decision on appeal.

On motion, counsel submits a joint affidavit from the applicant and her spouse asserting that the applicant should be granted a waiver of inadmissibility in the spirit of the Legal Immigration and Family Equity (LIFE) Act, H.R. Bill 5548 Title XI, enacted by Congress on December 21, 2000. The couple states that the applicant did not understand the consequences that would ensue from her indiscretion and that the spouse is suffering emotional and physical hardship due to separation from the applicant.

The record reflects that the applicant sought to procure admission to the United States in June 1988 by presenting fraudulent documentation in an assumed name. The applicant was ordered excluded and deported from the United States by an immigration judge on May 26, 1988 and was removed to Jamaica on June 11, 1988.

Section 212(a) of the Act states:

> CLASSES OF ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR VISAS OR ADMISSION.- Except as otherwise provided in this Act, aliens who are inadmissible under the following paragraphs are ineligible to receive visas and ineligible to be admitted to the United States:
> * * *
> (6) ILLEGAL ENTRANTS AND IMMIGRATION VIOLATORS.-
> * * *

> (C) MISREPRESENTATION.-
> (i) IN GENERAL.-Any alien who, by fraud or willfully misrepresenting a material fact, seeks to procure (or has sought to procure or has procured) a visa, other documentation, or admission into the United States or other benefit provided under this Act is inadmissible.

Section 212(i) of the Act states:

> ADMISSION OF IMMIGRANT INADMISSIBLE FOR FRAUD OR WILLFUL MISREPRESENTATION OF MATERIAL FACT.-
> (1) The Attorney General may, in the discretion of the Attorney General, waive the application of clause (i) of subsection (a)(6)(C) in the case of an alien who is the spouse, son, or daughter of a United States citizen or of an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, if it is established to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that the refusal of admission to the United States of such immigrant alien would result in extreme hardship to the citizen or lawfully resident spouse or parent of such an alien.
> (2) No court shall have jurisdiction to review a decision or action of the Attorney General regarding a waiver under paragraph (1).

Sections 212(a)(6)(C) and 212(i) of the Act were amended by the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (IIRIRA), Pub L. 104-208, 110 Stat. 3009. There is no longer any alternative provision for waiver of a section 212(a)(6)(C)(i) violation due to passage of time. In the absence of explicit statutory direction, an applicant's eligibility is determined under the statute in effect at the time his or her application is finally considered. See Matter of Soriano, 21 I&N Dec. 516 (BIA 1996; A.G. 1997).

If an amendment makes the statute more restrictive after the application is filed, the eligibility is determined under the terms of the amendment. Conversely, if the amendment makes the statute more generous, the application must be considered by more generous terms. Matter of George and Lopez-Alvarez, 11 I&N Dec. 419 (BIA 1965); Matter of Leveque, 12 I&N Dec. 633 (BIA 1968).

Section 212(i) of the Act provides that a waiver of the bar to admission resulting from section 212(a)(6)(C) of the Act is dependent first upon a showing that the bar imposes an extreme hardship on a qualifying family member. Although extreme hardship is a requirement for section 212(i) relief, once established, it is but one favorable discretionary factor to be considered. See Matter of Mendez, 21 I&N Dec. 296 (BIA 1996).

In Matter of Cervantes-Gonzalez, Interim Decision 3380 (BIA 1999), the Board of Immigration Appeals (BIA) stipulated that the factors deemed relevant in determining whether an alien has established extreme hardship pursuant to section 212(i) of the Act include, but are not limited to, the following: the presence of a lawful permanent resident or United States citizen spouse or parent in this country; the qualifying relative's family ties outside the United States; the conditions in the country or countries to which the qualifying relative would relocate and the extent of the qualifying relative's ties in such countries; the financial impact of departure from this country; and finally, significant conditions of health, particularly when tied to an unavailability of suitable medical care in the country to which the qualifying relative would relocate.

In Perez v. INS, 96 F.3d 390 (9th Cir. 1996), the court stated that "extreme hardship" is hardship that is unusual or beyond that which would normally be expected upon deportation.

The record reflects that the applicant's spouse is also a native of Jamaica. The couple were married in Jamaica on April 18, 1996 and have three children together who reside in Jamaica with the applicant. In a previously submitted affidavit, the applicant's spouse stated that he needs to bond with his children and this can only occur if he has the assistance of his wife in the rearing of his children in the United States. However, when interviewed by a consular officer, the applicant indicated that her children would remain with her mother in Jamaica if she were permitted to travel to the United States and that the couple would send money for their support. The applicant also stated at her consular interview that her husband would suffer no hardship, other than being emotionally perturbed, if she were not permitted to travel to the United States.

A review of the documentation contained in the record, when considered in its totality, reflects that the applicant has failed to show that her husband (the only qualifying relative) would suffer extreme hardship over and above the normal economic and social disruptions involved in the removal of a family member. Having found the applicant statutorily ineligible for relief, no purpose would be served in discussing whether she merits a waiver as a matter of discretion.

In proceedings for application for waiver of grounds of inadmissibility under section 212(i) of the Act, the burden of proving eligibility remains entirely with the applicant. See Matter of T-S-Y-, 7 I&N Dec. 582 (BIA 1957). Here, the applicant has not met that burden. Accordingly, the order dismissing the appeal will be affirmed. The application will be denied.

ORDER: The Associate Commissioner's order dated October 27, 2000 dismissing the appeal is affirmed. The application is denied.
